WINNIPEG, August 17.
A steamer has blown up at Portland, and six men killed.
Seventeen persons have been drowned in Ireland by a boat accident.
Sixty persons have been drowned in Northern Hungary by floods.
A meeting of the Commercial Bank creditors was held in Winnipeg to-day.
The Great Northwest Central Railroad is in hands of sheriff, and is now tied up.
An attempt was made to shoot McEachern near Mead because of his severity on the ranchers.
By the collapse of a railway bridge at Millan, U.S. Wednesday, seven were killed and many injured.
The Behring sea award has been given in favor of Great Britain, although the regulations imposed will work out in favor of the United States.
The Manitoba and Northwestern Railway strike ended to-day as opposition to paying the men their back wages has been withdrawn. The operation of road will proceed.

LOCAL.

Mr. FRANK OLIVER went east Tuesday to attend the Assembly at Regina which meets on Friday.
The Hon. T. M. Daly and party left on private car attached to Tuesday's train bound for Regina and Battleford.
The painters are now at work on Ross's hardware store which has been undergoing extensive alterations and repairs.
A. PRINCE left Tuesday for Winnipeg, accompanied by Mrs. Prince. He will return and attend the assembly at Regina.
THOMAS left Calgary on time to-day. Is bringing 3 cars of merchandise, 1 of machinery, 1 stove, 1 binder, 2 of settlers effects.
Misses McNamara of Calgary, mother of P. L. McNamara and D. McNamara who has been at Edmonton visiting her sons, left on last Tuesday's train.

On Wednesday a band of 39 horses from Whitman county Washington Territory were sold by auction at Brown's Stables. They were knocked down cheap.
On Tuesday evening a dance was given to Miss Jessie Rogers, in Robertson's Hall, by Mr. and Mrs. Fortin, about 30 were present. Miss Rogers leaves next Tuesday for Chicago.

The result of the promotion examinations, held at Regina are now fully known; and show that some were successful in passing the examination for promotion from Standard 3 in the Edmonton Public School.
The building in the occupation of Miss Charbonneau on Jasper Avenue, has been faced with brick and a fire wall constructed on the East side. This adds to the appearance and safety of the building and lessens rate of insurance.

The building Committee of the new Methodist Parsonage at Edmonton advertise for bids. Contracts will be received after Saturday 19th and up to Friday, August 25th. Specifications may be seen at the office of Edmonson & Flater architects. All tenders must be accompanied by a marked cheque for 10% of the contract price.

TENDERS are being asked for the construction of a side walk from Block 6, river lot 6, on south side of Jasper Avenue, to the north east corner of Block 1, Hudson Bay Reserve, thence down the West side of 1st street to the old Postoffice, and will be received up to Wednesday the 23rd instant. The side walk from Block 6, to corner of H. B. R. is to be 8 feet wide, from there to the old Postoffice 4 feet wide.

On Thursday last, the shareholders of the Edmonton Oil Company, met and elected as provisional directors, M. McCauley, John Cameron, Frank Oliver, C. F. Strang, Phil Daly, A. D. Osborne, James McDonald, William Felders, and N. S. Edmonson. A. D. OSBORNE and James McDonald were elected trustees. Messrs Beck & McNamara were instructed to take the necessary steps to procure letters of incorporation.

A letter has been received at Ottawa from Prof. Tyrrell of the geological survey, who is on a long and lonesome trip to Chesterfield Inlet, on the Northwest shores of Hudson Bay. This letter was dated from Fort McMurray, away in the 62nd parallel of latitude. He was then meeting with considerable difficulty in procuring an outfit and men—to get on to Fort Chipewyan with. Professor Tyrrell expected to get back this fall and report to headquarters, but owing to unavoidable delays, impracticability of the routes and difficulties of the journey, he may be compelled to winter in the far north. On his way he made extensive mineral discoveries.

Mr. R. L. ALEXANDER, the Dominion agent, took an extended ride last Friday to post himself on the locality round about Edmonton. He drove west through the Indian reserve and out into the country beyond, then North East into St. Albert, from St. Albert to Egg Lake, and Egg Lake back to town by way of the Sturgeon, crossing at Namsa. During his trip he interviewed many settlers all of whom were satisfied with the success they had made since they came into the country. He reports without exception he found the crops excellent, and judging by appearances this season's will be one of the best crops grown in Alberta. In one part he encountered a small strip of country about a mile wide that had been beaten down by a hail storm which fell about the 1st of the month. All the farmers were busily engaged in making hay of which there is an unlimited quantity.

Rudard Kipling the author is at Montreal. Owing to his refusal to reply to an invitation to dinner by the Pen and Pencil club, his arrival there has been practically unnoticed by their fraternity.
The resignation of Theodore Thomas as musical director of the World's Fair has been accepted. The big orchestra of 114 pieces will also be detached.
Sir Oliver Mowat starts on his visit to the North West Territories on the 19th inst.

The French Canadian delegates from the New England States who recently visited Manitoba have sent in a report to the department of the Interior. They visited especially the Riding Hills district in the Lake Dauphin country, and were delighted with everything they saw. They say the soil is rich, the water good and abundant, wood plentiful and crops superb. Of six men who went all took up homesteads before they left the country.

The total paid admissions to the World's Fair up to Aug. 10 is 7,348,419. It will keep the Americans busy to beat the Paris Exhibition record of over 35,000,000. The largest attendance was during July, when 2,760,263 people passed through the gates. August promises to average 100,000 per day, exclusive of Sundays.

Mayor Carter Harrison is reported to have said their is at the present moment 200,000 unemployed men in Chicago who are entirely destitute of means, and that if congress does not do something to relieve the stringency of the money market, their will be riots which will shake the foundations of the country.

A petition has been presented to the courts of chancery for the winding up of the North West navigation company. Which was established for the purpose of carrying on a forwarding and trading business on the Red Assiniboine, and Saskatchewan rivers and their branches, and on Lakes Manitoba, Winnipegosis and Winnipeg. Its inability to earn a dividend is due to the establishment of railway communication throughout the different parts of Manitoba and the North West Territories of Canada.

Up to Saturday the 12th, the Northern Pacific authorities report that no frosts have been recorded at any point along their line. The lowest reading of the thermometer was 40, at Winnipeg and 43 at Brandon.

A salmon weighing 84 lbs. has just been captured in the Fraser River. It is the largest ever caught there and was shipped to New York.

EDMONTON BULLETIN AUGUST 17TH, 1893.

THE DEPARTED GUEST.

Our guest has gone from us—the season of speech making and feasting is for the time at an end, and Edmonton will once more be its normal self. If there is one thing more than another we have reason to believe will result from the visit of the Hon. T. M. Daly to Northern Alberta, it is the long needed bridge across the Saskatchewan. To the building of this—or to the obtaining of the funds from Parliament for its erection, Mr. Daly has practically pledged himself. He has, as he has told us, seen with his own eyes the necessity for it—there is no need to repeat the why or the wherefore that we want a bridge, or the good it will do us, everyman woman or child within a circle of 100 miles knows that, for years our local orators have talked themselves hoarse upon it. It is a subject we have had on the brain and worried ourselves grey headed about—in short a bridge is the first step towards the realization of much that with it is practicable, but without it does not even come within the boundary of possibility. We say the Hon. T. M. Daly has left us, and we may say he carries with him the good will and wishes of the inhabitants of Edmonton and surroundings. Though Minister of the Interior—though the head of an important office he has been easy of access to everyone—to one and all he has accorded the privilege of saying what he had to say. He has not wrapped around him the cloak of his position, but has gone among us as a Canadian, a citizen, and a gentleman. This is as it should be—only by direct contact with the people—only by personal knowledge of the country, only by doing the same as the Minister of the Interior has done, can the chief of a Government Department make himself conversant with the needs and wishes of the people, in those certain instances and particulars which it is his province to look after.

The Hon. T. M. Daly, has told us he regards our requests over and beyond the bridge, a question we consider settled, as modest ones—let us hope then he will see they are realized and fulfilled. Modest people are so rare in this world, and the inflection is so painful a one, it were a shame if after coming to the scratch we were unhandily passed over. We trust too—it was not good bye he and his party bade us—but only “an revoir”.

OUR TOWN.

It is a fact, lamented by some, dwelt lovingly upon by many, that we have slipped into the habit—for three months in the year of being a summer town. It has crept slowly upon us this habit, as habits generally do, but here it is, we feel that it has become permanently characteristic of us that we shall wear white ducks—play cricket and eat ice cream with the wilful abandon of our southern neighbors under the tropics, but cannot in justice be considered actively responsible for the condition of affairs. It all rests upon a decree issued by the bureau of providence that we should be situated in latitude fifty-three north of the line so we accept this as something there is no kicking against, extol to the stranger with no mean spirit the climatic blessings that come with it and audibly damn those we fancy we may lack.

Yes our climate, our soil and our scenery—joined with that push and public spirit which is characteristic of the people in the new Northwest, are rapidly forming our destiny, we acquiesce in all that pertains to the good of the commonwealth—watch with discerning eyes the progress of our sister territories, and as we do so feel competent to show them a thing or two—for we do not regard ourselves the least forward portion of the Dominion. In Alberta generally we have unlimited faith, as for our own town—we well believe in it as we do in ourselves—would you like us say more? “Come and see us” is the invitation we scatter broadcast—“we invite inspection and we court enquiry.” We have been told by some there is nothing overbearingly mean about us, and we do flatter ourselves to those worthy of it, we have always held out the right hand of fellowship in no half hearted and no niggard way.

But perhaps you who walk our streets in July, fanning the breeze from the hills that comes to refresh our heat stricken summer sojourners, may imagine or have heard a terrible tale of our poor little town in the winters time. How the wind from his holiday playfulness has worked its way up through a series of autumn gales to a strong self assertive maturity whose blast is cutting and whose breath is ice. But this is direct misrepresentation. Not from the home of the polar bear, comes the wind that kisses our cheeks and lifts our locks becomingly above our brow. What little we do have is brought to us laden with leniency from the west and in its race from the Pacific, over mountain and valley has lost much of its strength and sharpness. It is a warm genial wind with nothing unpleasant or inhospitable about it—we suffer from no sweeping blizzards—no devastating tornadoes—infinity better off are we in all that pertains to our winter then many of our southern neighbors, and though the thermometer may record twenty, thirty or even forty degrees below zero, the merry ring of the sleigh bell and the shouts of youthful tobogganers is even to be heard above the crisp white snow. It is an undisputable fact—proved by every new comer to the territory that the cold is felt less keenly here than in countries where it is an unusual thing for the mercury to reach freezing point. Many there are who will tell you they prefer the winter to the summer weather—the white coated woods to the flower strewn prairies. Personally we do not share in this extravagance, but we can religiously say—with a good top coat, and plenty of underclothes, the cold does not bother us. One gentleman we know only last season, in the expectation of getting his ears frost bitten, ordered a fur coat to be made for him—extra heavy and extra warm, with which he might bury himself in, and defy the elements. He was surprised to find instead of using it, that there were days in January when he could sit out on the verandah and read his paper, and the fur coat hangs neglected and unused on a hook in his closet from, which it has never been taken.

But pray do not imagine we mean to imply our rain is less wetter—our snow less deeper—our frosts less keen—our ice less slippery those of other lands. We are not given to exaggeration, for modesty and truthfulness were always our besetting qualities—but we do claim that owing to certain climatic causes—the dryness of the atmosphere for one, winter in Alberta has little repellent about it to a healthy man, who does not suffer from German measles and has had his teeth cut. We are not going to say you can sleep out at night, or that such a thing as a fire is not needed—or that the roses and violets will bloom in your garden—but we do say a season here will endow you with the appetite of a horse, and teach you to sleep like a government mule.

Our Town, with what pride do we say it—Our Town! At this moment as we sit in our office, penning these lines with the sunlight streaming in at the window, we ask you if there is not something truly bright and inspiring about it. Something suggestive of go and energy about the place, that augurs well for its future. Counting our accomplishments on our fingers it takes both hands before we number them—we mean to be ahead and not behind the times. Haven't we already the electric light and two brass bands? Not that we consider the apex of culture or achievement reached, but wait a bit and you will see broad streets and lofty buildings range themselves where where the bush and tall grass now stands. Oh yes! we have faith in the future of the place, and wouldn't take less than eighty for a hundred dollar lot if you offered us the money down.

And our scenery—go and stand on top of the mission hill and look down across the swiftly flowing Saskatchewan, on the timbered undulating country beyond. Did you ever see a prettier sight? Look at that deep intense blue that stretches away from the slope at your foot to the far off line where the sky and the wonderland seem to meet. And if yet you wish a finer spectacle—take note of our sunsets. We do not feel the muse stirring within us—though occasionally we suffer from this indigestion, perhaps it is too early after breakfast—so we will refrain from describing them.

But speaking of our summer—do you mind the young man with the rubber blanket who for one whole season was a feature of our landscape. He was a super-enthusiastic devotee of nature and—personal safety. Hence his peculiar manner of pervading the sightly localities of the village and its adjacent territory, armed with a water proof wrap and a—bottle.

For four solid months, in whatever direction one walked or rode, one might be reasonably certain that the spectacle of this short and slim young man devouring the country before him would be encountered. He was always unaccompanied by any other visible means of employment. He neither smoked, nor sketched, nor read, nor botanized, nor geologized, nor photographed, he simply sat on a rubber blanket and gazed before him. To those with whom he spoke he said it was beautiful, beautiful. That one drink in those visions of beauty as one drank in the air and the sunshine, and the tea colored nectar—with a “hic” from his bottle. Then the far away look would come back to his fair young face as he turned away and began, drinking again. We wonder when he will visit us next—and will he come in the winter or the summer time?

Our town—then is a sweetness about those words the uninitiated can never understand, only felt by us who have nursed it through its babyhood, from the days when it was decked in swaddling clothes till now. Rightly does the old pioneer consider himself a big bug. On his shoulders has he borne the brunt of the battle of early days. He has conquered nature—he has triumphed over inconveniences the ordinary mind cannot grasp, he has converted the wilderness into a garden of civilization. Now he is in the transitional state, hovering between a past of which he is distinctly and reverently conscious, and a future which he regards with mingled feelings of hope and doubt.

The attitude of the thoroughbred local mind some few years ago, when Edmonton was not quite so cosmopolitan as Edmonton is now—was one which to the casual notice of an outsider, appeared to call for a new theory of the universe, since neither Moses nor Darwin furnished grounds for its claims of commanding individuality and authoritative perfection. It held towards the region south of the river, the attitude of the metropolis to the tented wilderness, speaking of the countrymen in the adjoining places as “the natives” and towards all entrenching itself in an impenetrable urban hauteur which was purely delicious—and the reason for all this, so far as history can furnish a reason, was that long long ago, Our town, was the town—the coming city of the great Northwest. It had its boom, the primitive boom of these days, and scooped enough to form an aristocracy entirely and emphatically its own.

It was a very primitive aristocracy and not very widely known—but it didn't mind that. It gaily felt its oats and kept on, content to know and feel it was the nucleus of coming grandeur. It courted difficulty and laughed at anything being an obstacle to its progress. It developed culture so far as it was able and patted itself with the genial assurance as the years grew on it was doing well—and called—not to loudly, for the multitude to admire.

So peacefully crooning its hymns by the rivers sunny slopes, a self contained, complacent community, it woke one morning to find itself the observed of all observers. That the far away east—it had always despised for its dawdling femininity had at last tumbled to the necessity of admitting its claims—and it heard not one whit surprised the tongues of thousands speak its name. If it rejoiced it did so quietly—it took its homage with the dignity it had borne its struggles. It would be superfluous to particularize the phenomena, attend ant on its publicity. The summer cottage—the extended street, the public hall, the sudden conversion of forest land to house lots—the “improvements” generally; we all know them.

And the best of it is—so says Our Town—the end has not yet come.

BANQUET TO HON. T. M. DALY.

On Monday night the Liberal Conservative Association gave a banquet to the Hon. T. M. Daly, minister of the interior. Besides the members of Mr. Daly's party, a large number of townsmen were present, representing the old timers, and the commercial and farming interests of Edmonton and surroundings. Dr. Wilson, president of the association took the chair—at half past nine in the evening—but it was well along in the small hours of the morning, before the assemblage broke up. The banquet was in every way successful, speeches and songs following on after the dinner. Robertson's hall where it was held was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flowers and flags, while the entering of F. Marriage left nothing to be desired. An elaborate programme of 12 toasts had been arranged before hand which was faithfully carried out. Along towards half past twelve Mr. Davis, M. P. for Alberta and Mayor Lucas of Calgary arrived on the incoming train and participated in the proceedings. During the dinner Sgt. George Porches, Mr. Andrews and Mr. May gave selections of music, their services having been volunteered for the occasion. The following was the menu served:

Bisque of Oysters.
Sandwiches. Celery.
Cold Salmon Mayonnaise. Sliced Cucumbers.
Lobster salad.

Westphalia ham a la jelee.
Cold chicken. Spring lamb. Filet of Beef.
Ox tongue. Chaud froid de gibier.
Chicken salad.

Pyramid of Macaroons.
Charlotte Russe. Babas aux amandes.
Orange jelly. Wine jelly. Blanc mange.
Assorted cakes. Candies. Fruits. Nuts.
Tea. Coffee. Beer. Lemonade.

The Hon. T. M. Daly in responding to the toast—by Dr. Wilson of the guests of evening, made an able speech, in the course of which he referred to the very hearty welcome that had been given him at Edmonton. He said it was enough to overcome any man, especially one who a drop of Irish blood in him. He thought there could not be a greater compliment paid him than the meeting here to-night. All through his tour clear to the Pacific coast he had refused similar invitations and attended strictly to business. He was among them to-night as a conservative, perhaps he might say, as the political leader of the conservative party in the great Northwest—and it stirred him to see so many good conservative gathered round him. He paid a touching tribute to the late Sir John Macdonald—his abilities as a statesman, and the power he wielded as a leader of the conservative party. To him was due the federation of the provinces and the conceiving and carrying out of the idea of that great line of railway which stretched from sea to sea. He traced the history of the C. P. R. from the laying of the first tie to the present time. He thought too much credit could not be given to that party who had worked for them fought for them, carried them when there money ran out, in the face of a running fire of abuse from the Grits. He told a story of how he addressed a meeting at Warton on the boundary line, shortly after the C. P. R. had been completed. It was in the winter time, when the thermometer stood at 35 degrees below zero, and after a very hard and cold drive they arrived at the place where he was to speak. The chairman's name was Johnson. Introducing Mr. Daly, he said I don't know of any reason why he shouldn't begin. There are exactly 35 of us here to a man, and everyone are conservatives except one, but before Mr. Daly leaves, or before we get through with him, we hope he'll be one too. He went on to tell the obligations they were under to the conservative and said, you all know Mr. McKenzy's great scheme of utilizing the water stretches. If he had been in power now—instead of being able to visit our friends east on a pullman car, you'd be going east on skates or an ice boat—and this said Mr. Daly, is about how the matter stands. Speaking of the national policy which had built up the conservative party, Mr. Daly foreshadowed a change in the future. He was not going to say that the national policy had not done all it was intended to do—had not accomplished all they hoped it would accomplish—for it had. It had built up the Canadian manufacturers till to-day they were able to compete in the open market of the world, which they could not have done in 1878. But this was not to say that policy would be maintained. The conservative party, ever ready to meet the altered condition of affairs, were now gathering statistics and material with which to lay before the house a plan that would meet the wishes of the people. When he returned to Ottawa it would give him much pleasure to tell Sir John Thompson that nowhere in the Dominion were there more loyal and staunch supporters of the government than in the Northwest Territories. He spoke of the Northwest as being ultimately destined to lead the wealthiest part of the greater new Great Britain of theirs. He hoped he would live to see the day when there would be provinces instead of districts, and when the provinces of Saskatchewan, Assiniboia, Northern and Southern Alberta and the now far away and distant Athabasca would be sending their quota of members to the house of commons. If the government had not seen their way to finding the money for a bridge at Edmonton, it was because they had considered there were things more pressing in other places, but they had not like him seen the country. He would certainly press upon his colleagues of the government and the minister of public works the necessity of a bridge here. After the toast of the civil service had been responded to by deputy minister Burgess, Indian commissioner Hayter Reed, and inspector of mines W. Pearce, Mr. Daly again spoke. He said outside of the heads of departments like himself, not one realized the amount of work the civil service had to do, and that no part of the Dominion had received greater benefit at their hands than the Northwest. He drew a distinction between the ministers and the servants of the civil service, claiming that the ministers were only the political heads of the civil service, and might be removed at any time, but that he hoped such men as deputy minister Burgess and other civil servants would like the brook, continue to "go on forever." Touching on the surveyors corps—he extolled that particular branch which Mr. Deville presides over, represented at the banquet by Mr. Dennis. They sacrificed home comforts, social enjoyments, endured untold hardships, and not unfrequently sacrificed life itself in the public service, receiving in return but very inadequate remuneration, and when Edmonton became a city, and had its bridge, there was no branch of the civil service to which they owed more than to the Dominion land surveyors.

The army and navy was responded to by Insp. Snyder of the N. W. M. P. The legislative assembly by F. Oliver, Alberta by D. W. Davis, M. P., Mayor Lucas of Calgary and ex-Mayor McGrath of Lethbridge. Agriculture and commercial interests by D. Maloney, R. McKernan, C. F. Strang and W. J. Walker. Old timers by J. Gibbons and A. D. Osborne. The learned professions by N. D. Beck, S. S. Taylor, H. L. McInnis and Dr. Harrison. The press by F. Oliver and J. B. Spurr. The ladies by C. D. T. Becher, D. McLeod and F. F. Tims. The mayor and council of Edmonton, a toast not on the list, but proposed by F. F. Tims was responded to in a capital speech by Mayor McCauley and by councillors Goodridge and Strang.

At intervals between the toasts some rattling good songs were given. Dr. A. F. Ibbotson sang, "The Will o' the Wisp," and "Rule Britannia." E. Raymer, "The Maple Leaf Forever." Jules Royal, "The Marseillaise." C. D. T. Becher, "The Boys of the Old Brigade." J. S. Dennis, who being called on several times wanted to know if they thought him a concert troupe, sang, "The Admiral's Broom," "We are Three," &c. J. Gibbons, "Joe Bower." J. B. Spurr, "St. George's Banner" and "Hearts of Oak." W. Wilkie, "The Frenchman," and "Willie Brewed a Peck o' Malt." "Good Night Ladies" was appropriately sang by all present standing up when the ladies in the balcony, after listening a while to the speeches, rose to depart.

The evening closed with a toast proposed by Mr. Daly to the host, the hostess and assistants—and three cheers for the girls.

Controlled only by the proprietor and therefore always ready and willing to speak out for the good of the town and district.

THE BULLETIN is read more generally throughout the Edmonton district than any other paper.

If you want to do business in the Edmonton district you can reach more of the people with a less expenditure of money through the advertising columns of the BULLETIN than by any other means.

Fair advertising rates charged, and like rates to all parties.

No advertising of a questionable nature admitted if its character is known.

THE BULLETIN Printing office is second to none in the Territories. Only first-class type, machinery and paper employed. Printing of all kinds done promptly, neatly and cheaply. Call and see samples of work, and get prices before ordering your printing elsewhere.

A newspaper is not a producing industry, but if properly conducted it assists and stimulates production and progress more than any other single agency of like cost. Money spent towards the support of a newspaper is almost entirely spent within the town in which the paper is published and is therefore not lost to the business of the town.

The local newspaper represents the district in which it is published to the outside world.

Support your home paper liberally if it deserves support, so that it can give the best possible impression of your town and district as a field for immigration and investment.

There is big money for a new town in having a live and interesting paper.
